Lost In Love

I don't want to play it cool
Nor do I want to keep it on the low

The truth is I want this 'whatever' we have
The fact is I thrive on this unspoken interruption
The reality that exists is the undeniable distinction in what is

Can I willingly grapple with our ambiguity
Am I allowed to embrace this irrepressible contagion
Do I scare you with my reckless behaviour and risky bravado

I am not one to play it safe
I've figured this out and what it all means
I am quite determined to see it through no matter the cost

I need to become the feeling
I need to outpace all rational, and
Lose myself in loving you
